I think it has all the qualities of a great game, but it still lacks something to make it a truly great game. I think that part of the problem is that the game is still finding its identity, and the end result is a style that is similar to many other MMO's, and it falls short of a truly great MMO. Really wish a new game was coming, and it's the only reason I really played it at all. I guess it was the best thing the game had going for it. You can't just keep making the same game, especially when the game is good and you don't need to do anything to fix it. A great game that doesn't need a big change to be better is still a great game.
